Hongkons, June 6rn 1885. THE disgraceful scene which took place in the Mixed Court at Shangbai on the 29thultimo ought to have the effect of leading to energetic action being taken for the reform of that remarkable institution. A personal fraces on the bouch between a magistrate and his assessor is an event that can hardly be allowed to pass by without notice. accounts of the fraces as given in the local papers differ somewhat in details. A dispute arose between Mr. Huang and Mr. Gines as to the decision to be given in a certain case, and an appeal seems to have been made to fisticuffs. According to the N. C. Daily! News, Mr. Huang emphasised the offensive personal remarks he addressed to Mr. GILES. by rapping him sharply on the knuckles with the inky and of a pen which he held in postulated with nim on his conduct, whereupon the Magistrate, beside himself with rage, jumped up and shouting out something in Chinese deliberately struck Mr. GILES on the shoulder with his open hand. Mr. GILES, who naturally appeared to find it very diffition, hastily left the beach, overturning a small table as he stepped down." The Courier's account is written in a funny vein. Whether accuracy has been intentionally sacrificed to effect or not we cannot say. After referring to what was said by the Ma-GILES, who raised his hands smartly to give force to his remarks, and in doing so he knocked the Chinase pen out of the Magistrate's hand. The Magistrate wished to know what Mr. GILEs meant by such bebaviour. Mr. Giles replied that it was an his hands to give force to his remarks atruck Mr. Gills on the chest. disturbance by knocking the pen out of Mrs. HUARd's hand in order "toemphasise his remarks." The Mercury's account is as follows : -"Mr. HUANG, in his excitement (accidentally it may be supposed), struck the Assessor a mark. The Assessor, averting the blow, sent the pen fiving into the middle of the Court-room. Hereupon Mr. HUANG, losing command of himself altogether, struck Mr. GILES a blow on the back with his fist. The Assessor, however, did not retaliate, but immediately left the Court." It will be observed that both the Daily News and the struck Mr. Grans over the hand with his pen. The Moroury suggests that it may have been it is rather unfortunate that Mr. GILEs should have "sent the pen flying into the middle of the Court room," for this doubtless be seized upon the Chinese to show that Mr. Gills himself had made use of some violence. That the circumstances were such as would have quite clear from the reports, but if Mr. GILES could have retired from the court without knocking the pen out of the Magiatrate's hand and without overturning the much we do not by any means wish to be understood as saying that it was a case of six of one and half a dozen of the other Mr. Huang is evidently solely responsible to prevent his committing an indiscretion.

"Girofle Girofla" is an opers which has been played all over the world with the greatest success, and though as regards the quality of the music we must give the palm to "Maritana," yet "Giroflo Girofla" is so full of fun and go, and the dialogue so crisp with puns Mr. Fred. Essex of the Cathay Post, writes of and witticisms, that with the general body of the audience it evoked considerably more enthusiasm. The music is very pretty, however, being all through bright and joyous.

The plot is of somewhat dinny material, and may be briefly described as follows:-Girefle and Girold are the twin daughters of Don Botero. A. Spanish grandee in some pecuniary difficulties, son of a heavy creditor of the Don, and Girofla to Morzouk, an unbased Moor who lives close by day, but Morsouk being delayed by a toothsche, Marasquin insists on not delaying his connubial felicity, and is married to Girofle, While the ceremonies are proceeding Girofla is carried off by pirates, and almost directly afterwards Morzouk arrives and demands his bride. The parents are distracted by fear of this truculent son-in-law, and the mother hits on a scheme. The two sisters are so exactly slike that they wear different coloured ribbons to distinguish one from the other, and she brings out Giroflé with Girofla's ribbon to present to great fun of the opera centres in the scenes that | able to pay wages. Just when it seems that this gentle-

The performance was again much aided by an orchestra, which on this occasion accompanied in a manner that left little room for faultfinding. Miss Eva Davenport assumed the dual role of the twin sisters, and she was enabled to do so by the fact that" they are never on the scene tegether, and that they are supposed to exactly resemble each other. We cannot say too much in praise of Miss Davenport's rendering of these two characters; both as an notress and a veculist this lady showed hersell to be well worthy of the position she holds in. the Company. It would be too long a task to enumerate the different parts of her personation where she called down the most enthusiastic applane from the andi-ace, but we cannot omit to mention the way in which sie render of the drinkingsong. The same writer also states that in their physical construction the islands form a large natural fort, with nearly perpendicular, sides towards the ses of from one hundred to two hundred feet high, afterwards rising to peaks of from six hundred to eight hundred feet, and then gradually sloping inwards towards the basin in the centre. Outside the water is very deep and affords no anchorage, except on the northern face, where the hills are more sloping. "In a military point of view," writes the Admiral emphatically, "if an insular post can be made inaccessible to an enemy, this certainly prosonts the most favourable qualifications. The Islands are in fact, two Gibraltars on a small scale, facing each other and guarding the harbour between them."

Port Hamilton apparently enjoys a fire climate, and is therefore well adapted for a sonitarium, its acquisition consequently supplying what might in war time prove aserious void in the British naval arrangements in this part of the world. On this head Admiral Shufeldt states that in addition to their position the fact that the islands separate both at the with being concerned with others not incustedy northern and southern points, must give very stant current of cool breezes in the sum not walk of a watch and chair, and money to the value of as there are no other openings the bride is protected during winter from the cold northeast and north-west winds. IMPERIAL QUARTO. INGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY. THE PUSTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION.

An Angio Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong. this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been: compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extense. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of and vacant spaces which have heretofore charge. EXTRACT ". A TRUE REBOINE. A cry of "First" rings through the chill night air. And, ever-spreading, helices everywhere, it is Till goldkly gath ring at the awasonic sound, Dense, ager crowds the burning house surround. The flames, whose merciles, burst awifely out, And literally rises still the warning shout; " As midst a lurid glare and heat most flire. Skywards loop up the fieres, fork'd tongues of fire! In vain each ear is strained to catch the cry Which tellerof hastening aid and succour night. 'Tie an unequal race; and, faint at heart, One sees the names have gained a fatal start. Ench moment seems an age, and hope grows sick, When at a window, where the smoke's less thick, A girl is seen, who wildly looks around, First at the roaring flames, then at the ground; Then, like a wraith, the phite form seems to go, And hopes more faint, and fears yet Gercer grow;

Will the brave girl returns to sight again, ryod by resolve the ettaggio to maintain day no longer, ready death to meet, was a bed and throws it to the street nd the onlookers raise a mighty shout, ding her, as she lores her life, jump out. "the not her or life the seeks to save. And por the growd comes silence like the grave, As she, now fearless midst the fire's alarus,

A child is seen to carry in her arms. And there a no sound; and hearts scarce best for dread As she her harden drops upon the bed. And histos, with courage it were hard to match, Another-victim from-grim death to snatch-

Thrice did that gallant girl her eteps retrace; Thrice did she death in all its horrors face,— Nor e'en one thought to her own safety gave Till there were no more little ones to save! We know what followed; how, worn out at last, She seemed o'ercome by dangers she had past; In maying other lives no fear she'd known But yet gave way when sho'd to save her own. 公康人员 数 计二维分词统人

And now she's dead; nor has she lived to know

What praise we all were ready to bestow' Upon a deed which time will magnify, and which we ne'er shall willingly let die We talk of courage on the battle-field, And our chief honours to those "horoes" yield, Whose claim to greatness is the lives they take, The towns they sack, the orphans that they make. We talk of courage t But, if he be bold Who shoots his enemies when he is told, What shall we say of these true heroes, then, Who risk their lives to save their follow-mon? And if we lavish crosses, titles, stars, On every-bold and dashing Son of Mars, What worthy honour could her country give To Alice Ayres, if she but yet did live? For think a moment why it was she died, And why grim death so scolly she defied! The children that she saved were not her own: None would have blamed her had she jumped alone 'Twas not a mother's instruct moved her heart; Nor did the play of tender sister's part: No! it was love-muselfith, noble, pure-Which led her to those children's lives make sure. It may have been she heard a plaintive cry. And that it nerved her thus to do or dis: It matters not, -she knew the children's need, And acted like a heroine indeed ! Yes, read our annals, search our history well,

And you will scarcely mest her parallel: Or find 'monget what in womanhood is best -- -A noble love, so gallantly express'd. Surely, then, sots like hers should lead to fame. And make renowned the very humblest rame; And if we courage recognise at all,

"Tis on such deeds as here reward should fail. In public places should their tale he told. On marble graved, in claracters of gold -So that the people, reading what was there, Might yearn themselves in such brave deeds to share -Truth.

He was a young Western phyhie excherg an em thought and Fidage. The rest of the week he devoted his inedical skill to horses that mere mentally nod physically broken down. He said he attended me largely for my society. I felt fluttered to know that he enjoyed my society after having been thrown among horses all the week but had had much greater advantages than I.

My wife at first objected seriously to an insurance on myelife, and and she would never, never touch a dollar of the mioney li Lwere to die, but after I had been sick nearly two years, and my disposition had, suffered a good deal, she said that I deed not do lay the obsequies on that account. But the Wil insurance slipped throagh my fiagers som how, and I recovered.

I have built up two life maurance companies and placed them on their feet since that. Phope they will not forget it when I come to call on them for a favour. One of them is an "old liner," and the other is an assessment company. I took a policy in the assessment common because I had been in politics some, mid when I went out I missed my susessment sadly. I had har me a clive! to the assessment habit; and so had to do something in order to supply its place.

now feel first read What I get my assessment notice Isinggite that I am an officeholder and that it is a billet doux from the central committee, so it is like old times

Life insurance is a good thing. I would not be without it. My health is greatly improved since I got my new policy. Formerly I used to have a sell-brown taste in my mouth when I arose in the morning, but that COREAhas disappeared entirely. I am more hopeful and happy, and my hair is getting thicker on top. I would not try to keep house without life insurance. List September I was caugh in one of the most destructive cyclones that ever visited a republican form of government A great deal of property was destroyed and many lives were lost, but I was spared People who had no insurance were mowed down on every hand, but aside from a broken leg I was entirely unharmed.

Since insuring my life I sleep better nights, and my neighbours are getting more-reckless. about leaving their watermelons and clot heslines out over night.
